Aleinu...

Most faiths have a way of calling people to prayer, bringing the community together. בְּרָכוּ is our Call to Prayer. Think of it as a shofar or bell, getting our attention, inviting us to begin.

The בְּרָכוּ comes right before the part of our service called "Shema and its Blessings." The words of the בְּרָכוּ can also be found in the blessing that is said over the reading of תּוֹרָה.

Because we are calling the community to prayer, the בְּרָכוּ is usually recited only when there are at least ten people present -- a "minyan."

ברכ

The root for many of the words in the בְּרַכּוּ, our Call to Prayer, is ברכ. This root comes from the word בְּרָךְ, knee, from the time people would bend at the knee to show respect and acknowledge a power outside themselves. The word בְּרַכּוּ means, “let us praise.” Study the words on the previous page. Use them to translate below.

Can you learn it by heart?

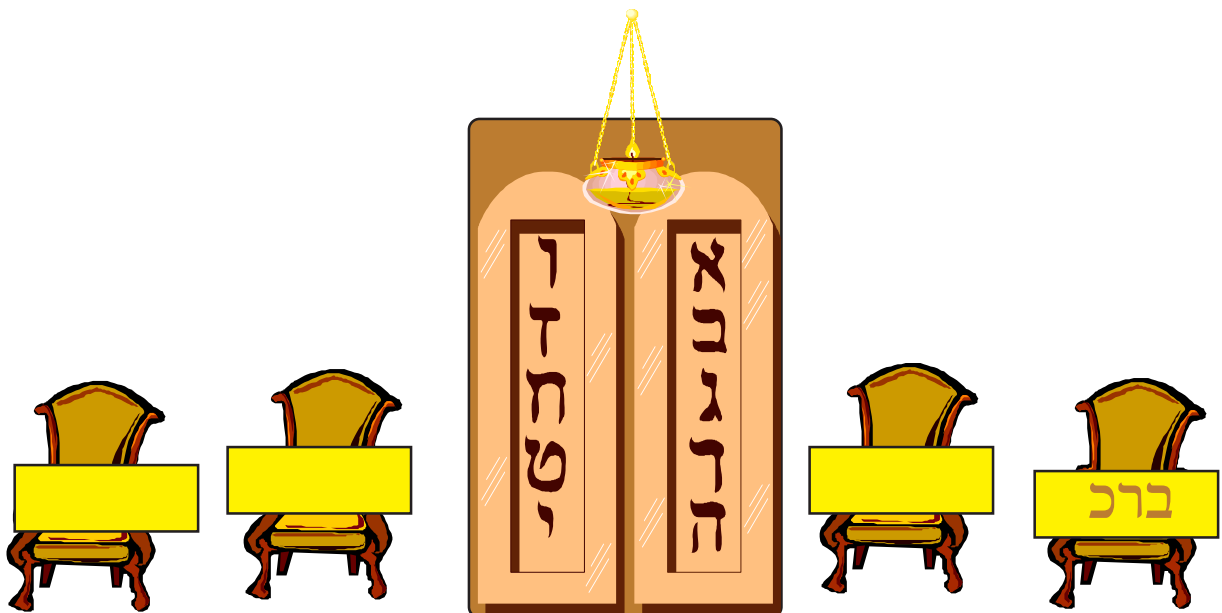

2. Three key words in the בְּרָכוּ come from the root for bless/praise, בֵּרַךְ. Write these three words onto the chairs on the בִּימָה below. (They can include either form of the third root letter, כ or ך.)

בְּרָכוּ אֶת-יְיָ הַמְּבָרָךְ:

בְּרוּךְ יְיָ הַמְּבָרָךְ לְעוֹלָם וָעֶד:

לְעוֹלָם

The בְּרִכּוֹ is a prayer way of getting our attention. A Call to Prayer. Each Hebrew word is next to something used to get people's attention. Write the name of the object that is above the Hebrew word onto the blank line by its English definition, below.
